

NATIONAL SHOP STEWARDS NETWORK

LONDON SHOP STEWARDS NETWORK to ALL TRADE UNIONS

- NO RETURN TO THIRTIES
- WE WON'T PAY FOR BOSSES GREED
- FIGHT FOR EVERY JOB

Protest against the fat cats in the city of London who threaten our jobs and living standards.

MEET AT Bank Tube

(Threadneedle Street entrance)

Monday 13th October 12 noon

The shock events in the financial heartland of capitalism have reverberated throughout the world. The bosses' system is failing. But worse, they are organising to take our taxes to pay for their greed, and holding down, even cutting our wages at the same time.

Workers say No - Make the bosses Pay

Trade unionists will fight any attempts to drive us into the ranks of the unemployed, or that threaten our homes or pensions. That fight starts at the bottom with shop stewards and workplace reps at the forefront.

The London Shop Stewards Network is organising a protest event in the city. We urge trade unionists to come along. Add your voice. Bring placards. Get in touch with the Network now.

We also urge all trade unionists to show your solidarity with London bus workers who work for Metroline this Friday 10 October by visiting their picket lines.

The bus workers are striking in pursuit of their claim for a living wage for all bus workers across the capital

Who we are

The National Shop Stewards Network (NSSN) was set up in July 2007 to bring together shop stewards and workplace reps from around Britain to fight against the increasing onslaught of attacks by the employers.

We have now organised two national conferences and whole number of regional and local conferences which have drawn together work place reps including those on strike or preparing to take strike action.

The NSSN is supported by the following national unions. RMT (Rail), PCS (civil servant's) POA (prison officers), NUM (mineworkers) and many local and regional bodies of trade unions.
